IN ANY EVENT, WE WISH TO HOLD A SORT OF "WELCOME HOME" PARADE FOR YOU HERE IN LEESBURG. TONIGHT, HOPEFULLY. MR. SHARP GAVE TENTATIVE APPROVAL...

SPLOOOSH

HELLO, ANDY.
REMEMBER
ME? I'M BLITHE.

I'VE BEEN GOING OVER
YOUR LIFE
WITH YOU?

OOOOH,

BEEN A REAL
LITTLE SLICE...

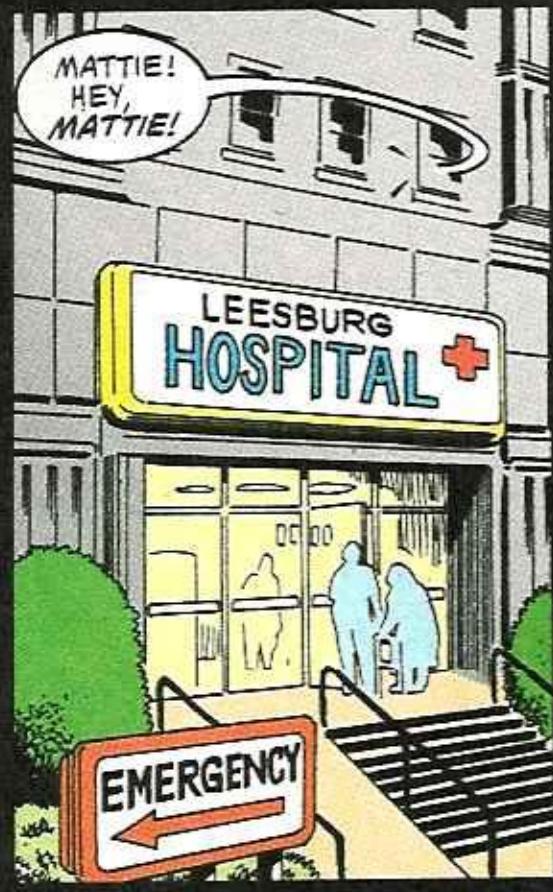

...BUT, LIKE
ANY SLICE, IT'S TIME TO CUT OUT!

OOHHHH, POOH.
ANDY, ANDY...

Oh, yeah.
That's
subtle.

With my luck, we'll get married, and on the wedding night he'll turn into a demon.

Speaking of demons...

...I should look in on Tammy Neil.
Ever since she was brought to the hospital after I rescued her from that weird, demon-infested underworld, * she's been sleeping.

* ISSUE #37.

The doctors say
she'll be fine,
but boy, what she was put through...

Still, I hope she
recovers soon.
Because she may very well have the answer to this whole
"Ember" mystery.

I wish I could talk to someone about this whole thing. The only one who'd really understand my problems is Andy... but she's still M.I.A.

WE'LL FINALLY BE GRANDPARENTS, AND ANDY WILL STOP MOPPING AROUND AND BE HAPPY...

OH, MY GOD. OKAY, YOU WIN... TURN IT OFF, OKAY, WOULDJA PLEASE? JUST--

Well now, our Supergirl sure has been through a lot lately, and it's not going to let up. So, let's see what's up with SUPERGIRL #33!

Dear SUPERGIRL Team:

The arrival of Murmur in SUPERGIRL #33 was the usual great action, with an appealing dose of mystery. Just what is going on and why? In the meantime, one of the things I really enjoy about this title is the way her double life inconveniences our heroine. Like Supergirl finding the night-shirt Linda sleeps in way too short. Or Linda's career opportunity coming from someone in Supergirl's past.

I want to compliment Peter David on his long-term planning in this title. I mean, he took his time introducing Supergirl's Earth-angel status and revealing that she is to be one of three. After all, it's only been fairly recently that we learned that Andy/

Comet is also one of the three. I don't think we've been given a hint about who the third one will be (have we?). And now he's setting up something regarding Murmur (who I expect we will see again) and Ember. But not to be explained next month. Talk about hooking the audience!

SARAH BEACH
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Hooking an audience is something Peter excels at, Sarah. And since we're meeting the third Earth angel in the present storyline, you should be pretty much hooked, reeled in and in the cooler.

Dear Maureen:

SUPERGIRL has always been one of those rare titles where I always enjoyed the ride. Peter David has never disappointed me or given me reason to complain (although I'm sure PETA may have a word or two to say about the cat in issue #33). I like his version of Supergirl so much that I want her in the JLA so that I can sometimes see her in action twice a month. I also want a statue, an Archives volume, and a T-shirt. He's made her that good. That's really all I have to say — except that I'm curious about one thing. How does Superman really see Supergirl? A sister?

A cousin? A charity case? What? After all, part of her was raised by the Kents.

And one final thing: Do Clark and Lois spend family events (birthdays and holidays) together with Ma and Pa? I'd like to think so. Can we see the occasional example?

Your fellow Supie...

DAVID R. WOOD
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

You want a statue, David, you got a statue. Tell your local comics shop to order one for you, and you'll have your very own Girl of Steel in your home.

As for your Superman questions: Clark and Linda have more of a cousin relationship than sibling, seeing each other only every once in a while. And the Lane-Kents and the elder Kents do gather together for holidays. We saw this last year during the "Superman Rex" storyline, when he went home for Thanksgiving, and we'll see it later this year during a New Year's Eve celebration! Linda has her own family with whom she's spending lots of quality time...now that they're not freaking out about her being Supergirl.

NEXT MONTH:

Satan Girl comes a-calling, and Supergirl's going to have a devil of a time dealing with her! We'll check out SUPERGIRL #40 in thirty days.
