SOMETIME LATER--A CAR STOPS AT THE FORBIDDEN ZONE--THE BUFFER BETWEEN RED CHINA AND HONG KONG...

A FEW MINUTES LATER... DIANA FINDS HERSELF IN A MAKE-UP MAN'S CHAIR--AN OLD FRIEND OF PATRICK'S...

IT WON'T PASS A CLOSE INSPECTION, DIANA--BUT AT A DISTANCE YOU'LL GET BY AS A PEASANT!

AFTER YOU'RE THROUGH, I'M NEXT!

YOU?! BUT THIS ISN'T ANY CONCERN OF YOURS, PATRICK--

YOU FORGET--I CHING'S AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE, TOO!

BESIDES, I KNOW WHERE A SHAI IS--AND I HAVE THE ONLY MEANS BY WHICH WE MAY MAKE IT INTO REDLAND SAFELY!

HOW'S THAT?
WAIT AND SEE--

AN HOUR LATER...

THERE'S THE ANSWER... A LIGHT PLANE! I HAD THEM PARK IT HERE AT THE END OF THE RUNWAY...

IT'D LOOK FUNNY FOR A COUPLE OF CHINESE PEASANTS TAKING OFF IN A PLANE!

DON'T WANT TO ATTRACT ANYMORE ATTENTION THAN WE HAVE TO!

NOW QUIET, WHILE I GET TAKE-OFF CLEARANCE--

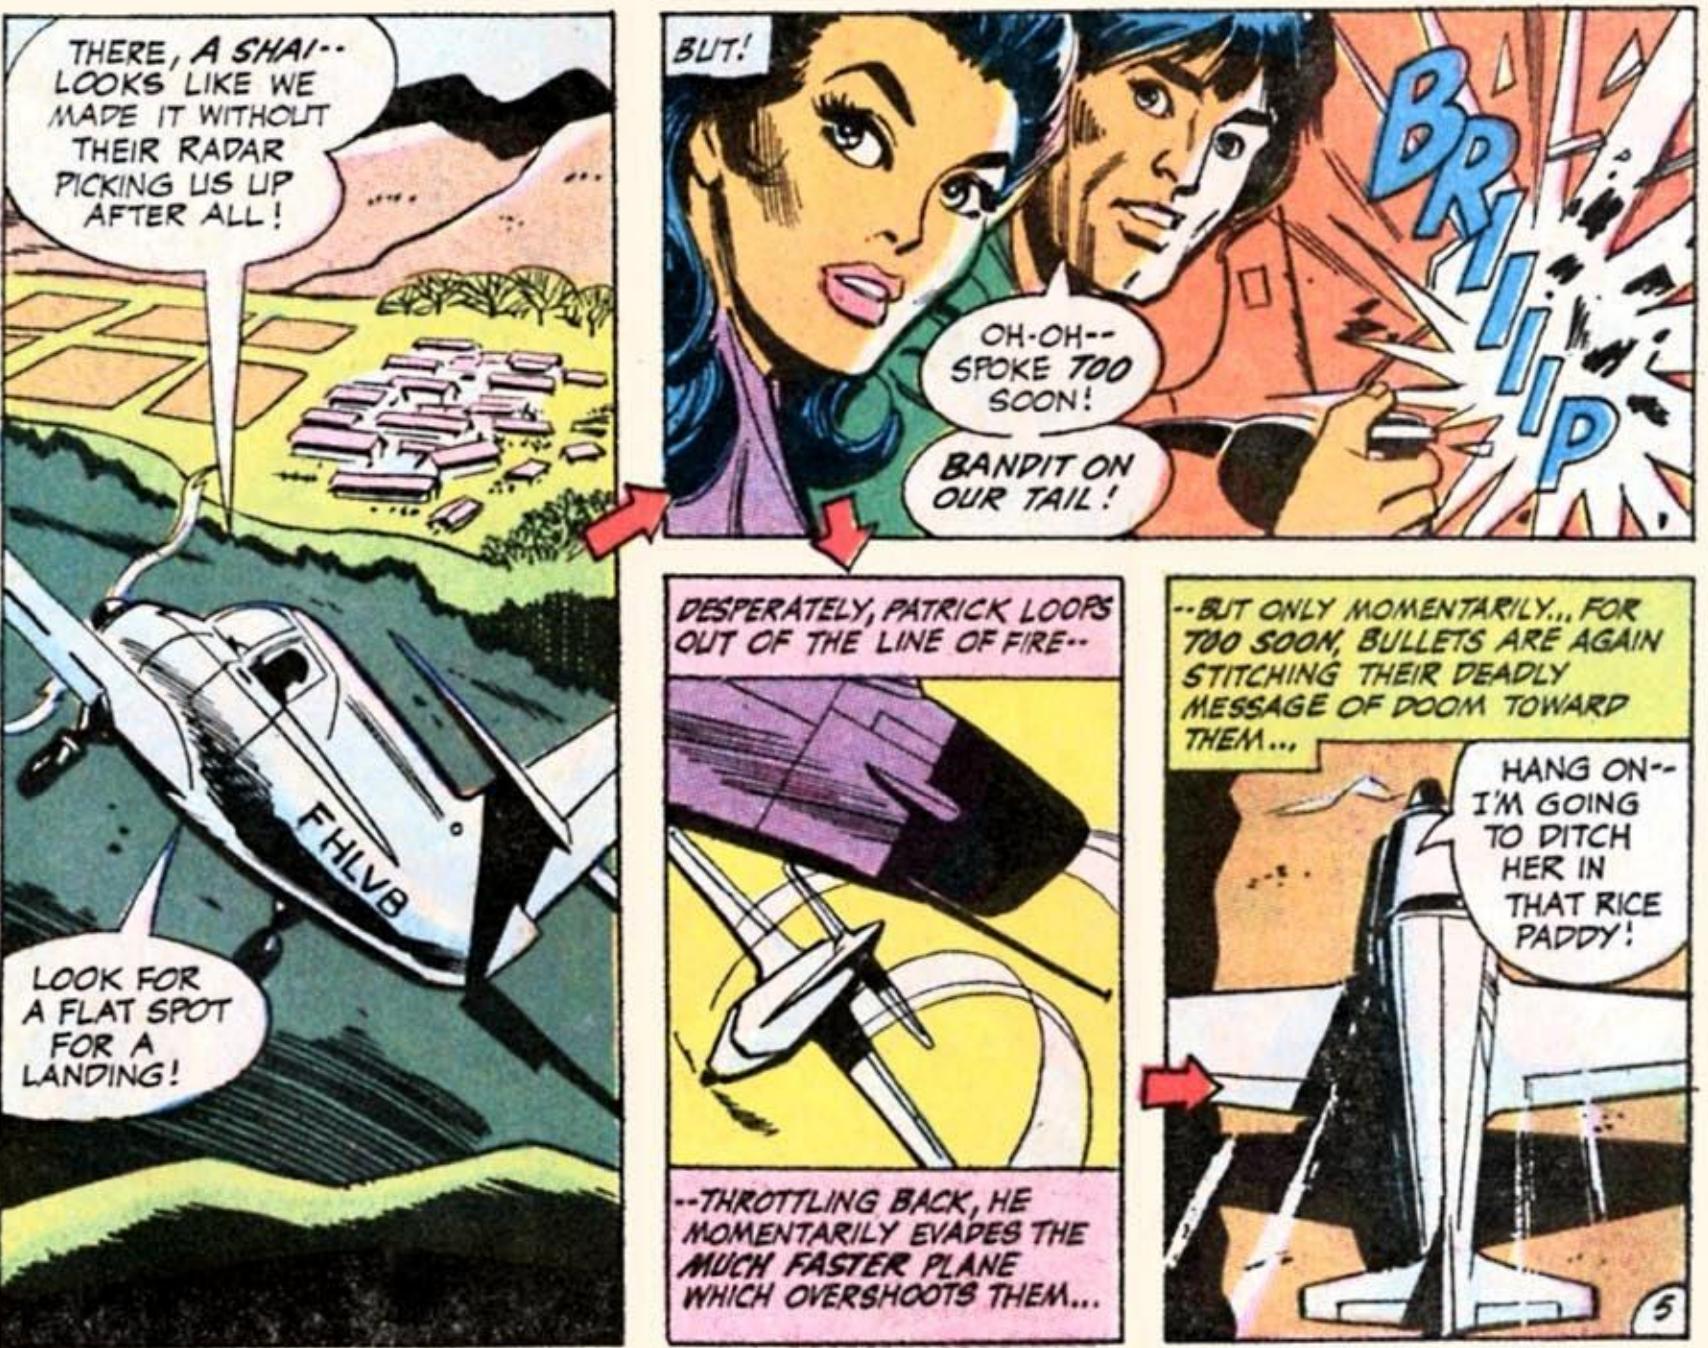

A FEW MINUTES LATER THE PLANE IS AIRBORNE...

IT'S ALMOST DAWN... THE TIME OF NIGHT WHEN PEOPLE ARE AT THEIR LOWEST EBB ENERGY-WISE AND MENTALLY--

BUT HOW IS THE PLANE GOING TO MAKE IT WHEN A HUMAN CAN'T?

--THE GUARDS WILL BE SLEEPY--MAYBE THEY WON'T NOTICE OR CARE ABOUT REPORTING HEARING A PLANE--OR THINK IT'S ONE OF THEIRS!

WE WON'T BE SHOWING LIGHTS--SO THEY WON'T SEE US...

PATRICK DELIBERATELY STALLS THE PLANE TWENTY FEET IN THE AIR, CAUSING THE MUCH FASTER FIGHTER TO AGAIN OVERTHOT THEM, AND AS THEY DROP WITH A SICKENING CRASH INTO THE RICE PADDY...

CCCRASHHH

IT'LL TAKE HIM
TIME TO CIRCLE
AND COME BACK AND HIT US AGAIN!

GET OUT AS FAST AS YOU CAN, DIANA!

THE NEW WONDERFUL WORLD OF WONDER WOMAN

M-162

Dear Editor:

I do not buy the new Wonder Woman—yet. I do however read my brother's copies. I hope you will take the time to read this missive slowly and carefully.

POINT # ONE—The title masthead on the cover is sloppy and vapid. It has no special pull, nothing to catch the eye. This is an important factor in catching the consumer's eye in order to show him a good comic. It has no real color (and I don't mean that in terms of hues, either.) or excitement to it. Try the old WW titling, with a few revisions. Fans are used to it, and the masthead is really like a trademark of the comic.

POINT # TWO—Just because you have pitched the old WW out the window does not mean that you must ignore all the work that Charles Moulton put in his original character. He was a genius. Mr. Moulton's WW was a successful character for many years.

If you must kill the original Wonder Woman, at least transplant some of her magic into the new one. Wonder Woman did not become a well-known name in DC by chance. It took work. The "new" WW is nothing more than a normal human with a retarded-looking sidekick; stringy-haired, saccharine, dressing in clothes that all look alike and are usually white, and getting involved with very, very stereotyped characters. Can you not give her at least one ability to make her something special; indeed, truly a Wonder woman? And it would attract the male market, instead of only girls. The female ratio of comic buyers is quite small, in reality.

POINT # THREE—I Ching is a sidekick, no matter how old he is. Robin, Kid Flash, Aqualad, Wonder Girl, etc., are also sidekicks. They do not go well with the adults anymore. That was in the 40's, in the past. And the idea of a woman having a man for a sidekick is stupid. If they were equals, fine, but sidekicks are a thing of the past. He is not that good a character, he is dull, he is old, he is helpless, and he seems to have only one dimension as far as emotions go. If your new WW is as popular as you consistently holler, then you don't really need him.

POINT # FOUR—The stories in the New WW are mundane and childish. I have seen better work come out of your typewriter, yet this talent has not shown itself so far. Can you not strike a happy medium? That "THEM" story was sick beyond belief, the story after that was completely trite and stupid—the big bad witch turning a boyfriend into a frog: really. Mr. Sekowsky! Can you do nothing better than ape Bewitched and Bell, Book, and Candle? I'm surprised at you. The story this issue was worn-out by over-doing. This spy bit, with the usual gang of assassins in "exotic Japan" was old hat even before you were born! Let's face it—the secret agent fad is over, dear sir, over! I realize you had to set the mood for the surprise appearance of Dr. Cyber, but couldn't you do it a little more originally? Again, look at DC's other stories. Not real way-out, but not copied from old TV show reruns, either. Clear your mind and try some imagination.

I had a number of other things to say, but enough is enough. I'll leave the rest to you. But major surgery is urgently needed, for the comic world is in a slump, and Wonder Woman is just as good a mag to be cancelled as any: the publisher does not give but so many second chances. Please take my suggestions to heart. I don't want to see WW go; it holds a large amount of memories for me. You see, I've read her comic since it came out long ago, so I'm not just a griping fan. Thank you for your time.

Most Sincerely,
Tom Tanner

Dear Mr. Tanner:

We are printing parts of your letter because of space limitation.

Then I and some of the other readers will take up some of your points.

POINT ONE—The old Wonder Woman was dropped because the sales on the old WW were so bad that the book was going to be dropped. The new Wonder Woman was given a chance—a last chance for the book) and it worked!

POINT TWO—Super characters, or as they are called "The Union Suit Set" aren't doing too well with today's readers—and it's to today's readers that we must cater to, not to a bunch of old fuddy duddys who only look back.

POINT THREE—You haven't been reading enough of your brother's WW—or else you'd see I-Ching and Diana Prince are equals—he also does not appear in each issue. He is not helpless, and he has quite a set of emotions, humor, compassion, etc. As for my hollering about WW's sales, I can honestly say that I am quite pleased to have taken a sow's ear and turned it into a silk purse.

POINT FOUR—will in part be answered by Shirley Gorman of Hereford, Texas and in part by myself—I personally feel that too many of DC's stories are still being written and plotted for the year 1940 instead of 1970, besides, the story took place in Hong Kong, not Japan.

As for the boys not reading and liking the new WW
—Here an excerpt from just one behind Shirley's letter.

Dear Editor:

Once again I am quite pleased with the current issue of the new Wonder Woman. Issue #187 was superb. It had just the correct blend of suspense, adventure, espionage and romance. I'm glad Dr. Cyber has returned and will be around for at least two more issues. Female against female—I really like that.

I-Ching and his daughter LuShan also added spice to the tale. Imagine I-Ching's remorse at learning that his long lost daughter is in the employ of the infamous Dr. Cyber. Beautiful idea.

Patrick McGuire makes an excellent supporting character. Now that Diana is no longer tied to one man, one love, she can play the field, so to speak. This makes for a much more interesting story. For now Patrick is perfect. I hope he stays around. As for the end, it was as icing is to a cake. Dr. Cyber's disfigured face surely must lay the groundwork for future conflicts with Diana Prince and the world.

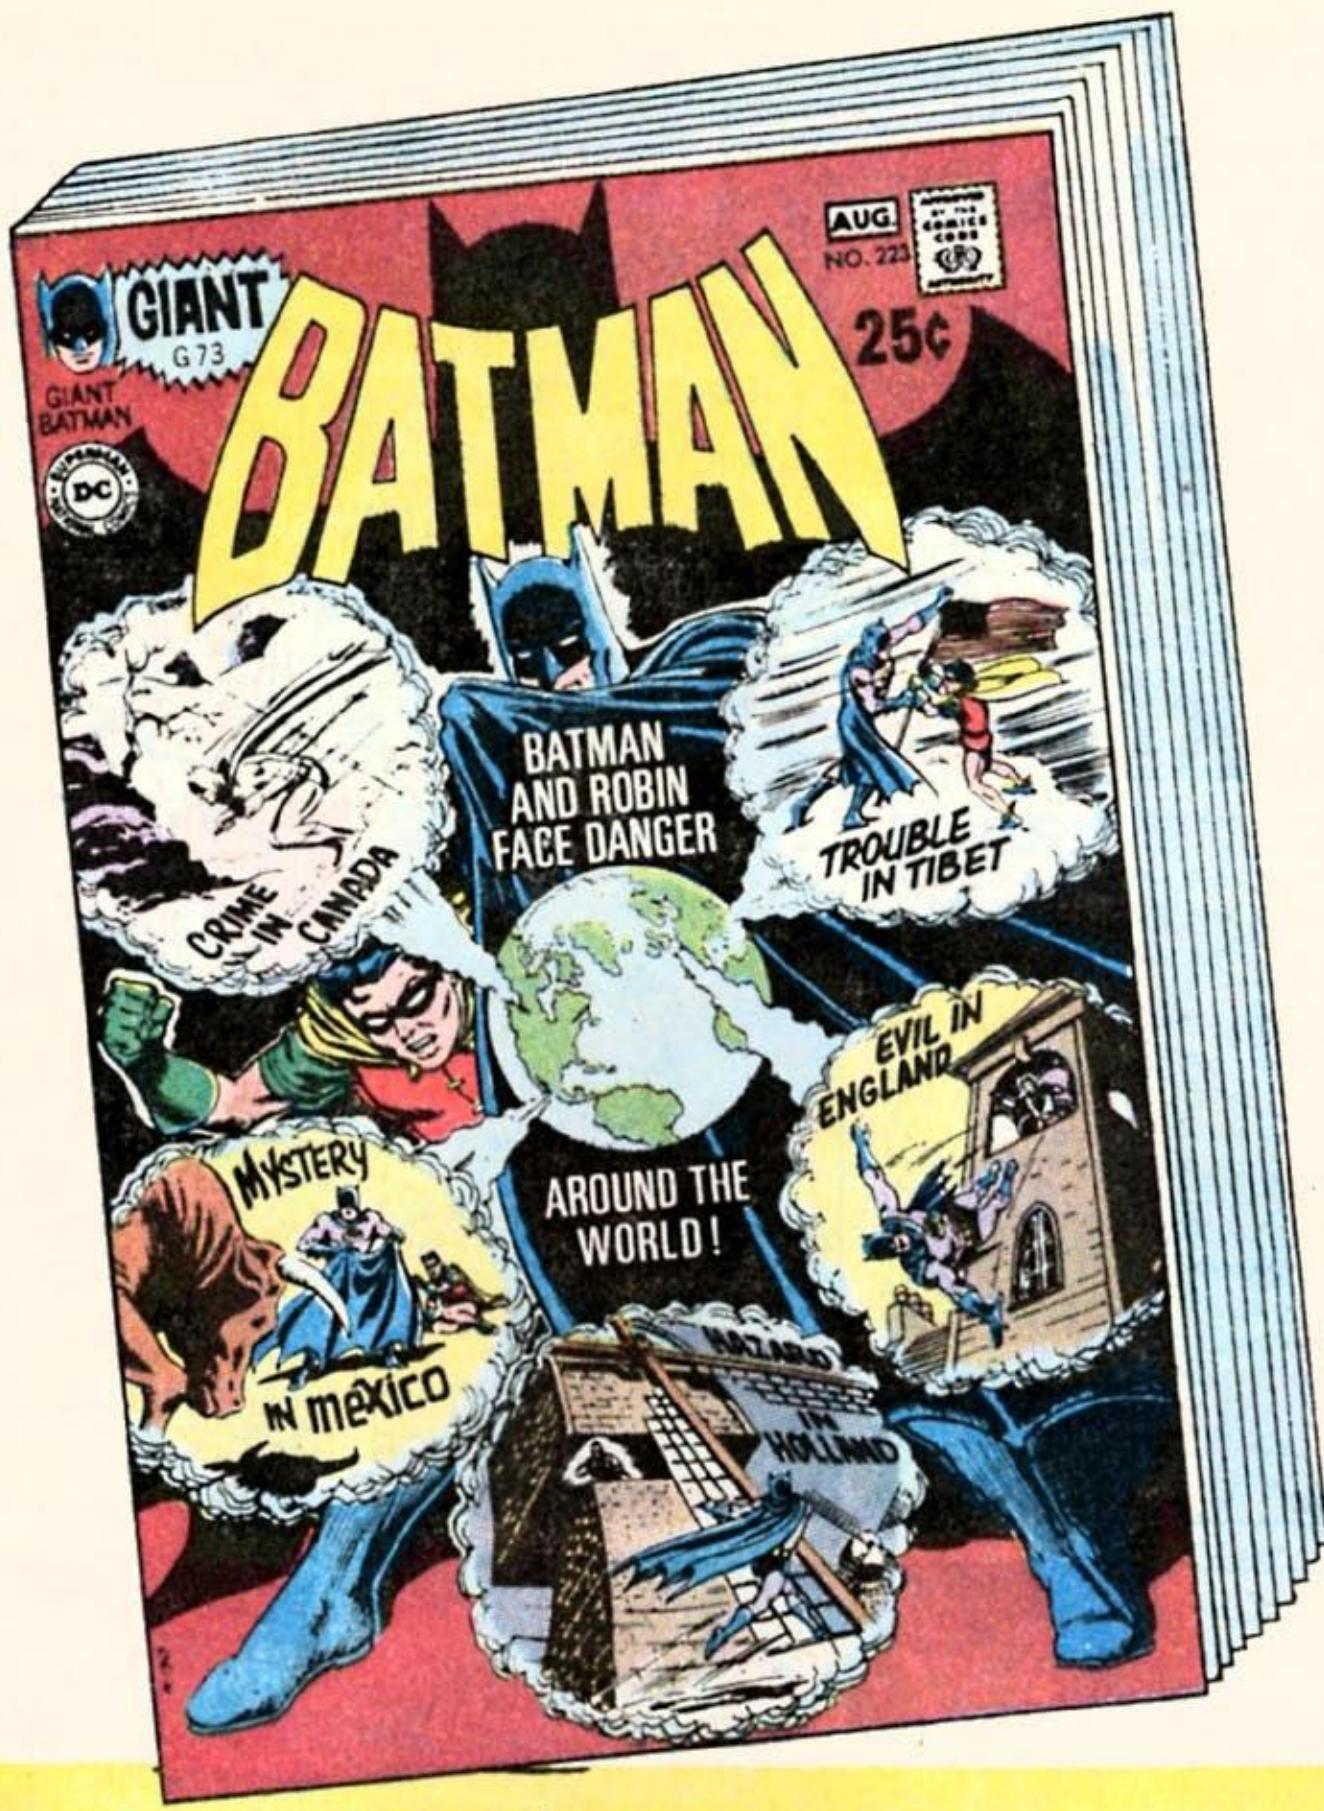

A fan forever,
Shirley Gorman

Dear Editor:

The old Wonder Woman was getting boring and the stories didn't seem to contain any more zip, but a change in costume and a new situation seemed to do a lot towards betterment of the mag.

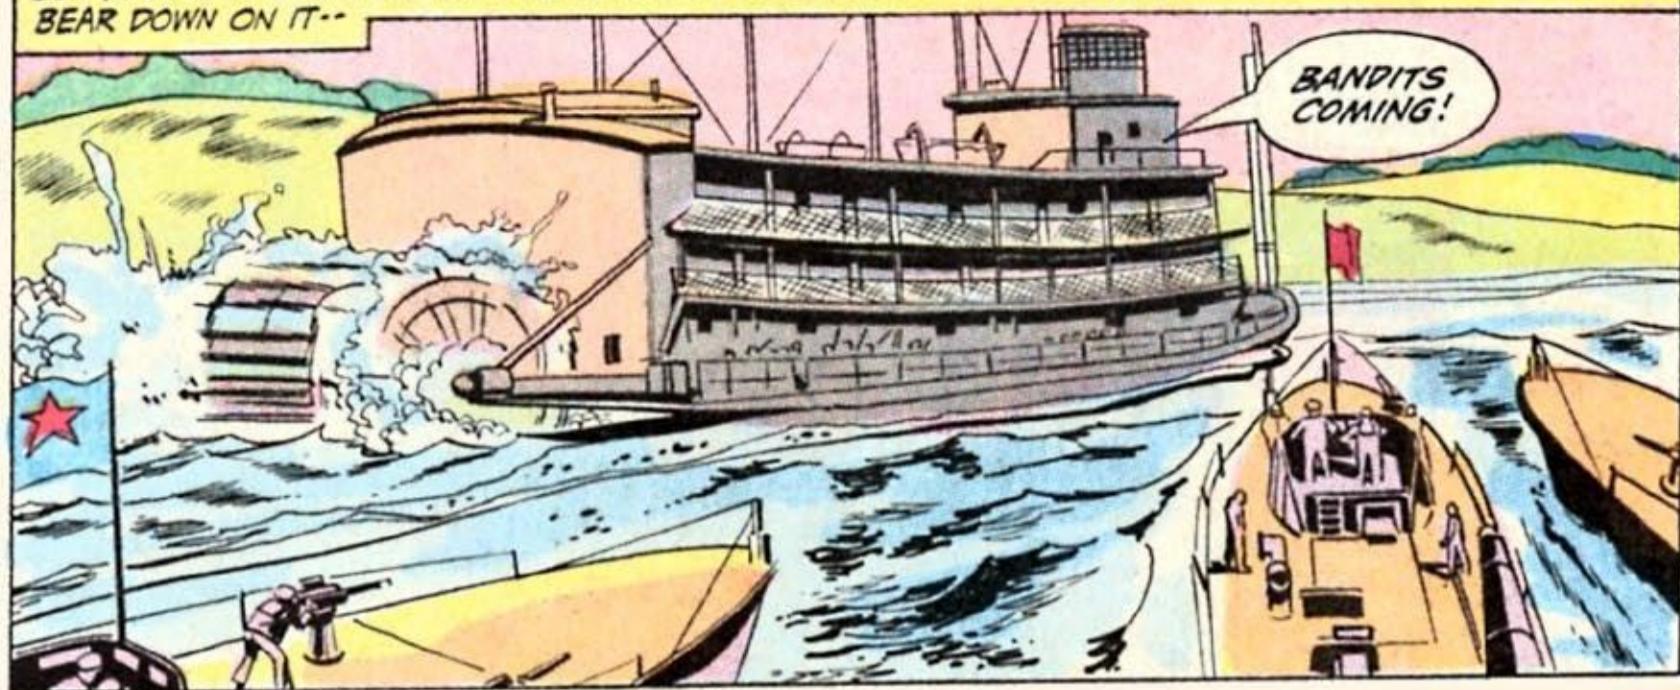

Don't be afraid to change Diana with the times. That's what is making her great.
