ALIVE AND WELL

Build her, yourself! The mighty North Carolina was reportedly sunk six different times by the Japanese during WW II. But we are happy to tell you that Battleship 55 is alive and well in the Carolina port of Wilmington, where she is a permanent, floating war memorial. You'll be totally absorbed as you build this daring dreadnought who fought in 12 major Pacific battles from Guadalcanal to VJ Day. She has main turrets that move, guns that elevate, and a crane and catapults that swivel to retrieve and launch her two scout planes. Her superstructure is incredibly true to life. If you enjoy building great ships of the line, the North Carolina will be the proud flagship of your collection. She sells for $2.00, wherever toys or hobbies are sold. # NEW "MATCHBOX" MODELS OF THE MONTH.

Ford Heavy
Wreck Truck
No. 71
Sugg. retail $3.55

These are "MATCHBOX" models for the really heavy jobs.

On your left, the Ford Wrecker with swinging cable and hook, plus a dome light. On your right, the Eight-Wheel Tipper, with ergonomic cab, a tipper that tips, a tailgate that opens. Both have tinted windshields, look realer than real (even to authentic name plates). Their die-cast construction makes them last. Want to see more models? Just write for a "MATCHBOX" catalogue. It's free.

Dear DC Fans:

First, we would like to thank you for having bought this DC Magazine, even though it cost you three cents more than usual. Obviously, you like our magazine and consider our stories worth the extra three pennies. That makes us feel mighty proud!

However, we think we owe you an explanation as to why it was necessary to raise our price. Over these past years, the cost of producing our magazines has steadily risen. We have to pay more for art, engraving, paper and printing. You, too, have to pay more for most of the things you buy. U.S. Post Cards, which used to cost only 1¢, are now 5¢. Sodas and telephone calls were a nickel, now they are double that, ten cents. Hot dogs also were a nickel, now they are at least 25¢. Everything costs more today than just a few years ago. Your parents have to pay more for food, clothing and rent.

We feel confident that you understand the necessity for this adjustment, and will remain loyal fans. For our part, we promise to redouble our efforts to maintain the same high standards of publishing that have produced the world-famous line of DC Comics.

Sincerely yours,
The Editors

FACT FILE #9

J24

THE SEVEN SOLDIERS OF VICTORY appeared in LEADING COMICS from issue No. 1 (Winter, 1941/42) through issue No. 14 (Spring, 1945). Starting with issue No. 15, the format of Leading Comics changed to the featuring of all "funny animal" or "animated" strips. This format lasted through No. 77 (Aug.-Sept., 1955), the last issue of the title.

With the success of the Justice Society Of America strip, which began a year before in All-Star Comics (Winter, 1940/41), National Comics decided to try a second team-up book of several characters that would also be featured individually in strips of their own. Unfortunately, almost all of the current "big name" heroes were already regular or honorary members of the JSA. Therefore, it was decided that something new and a little bit different would be tried. With the exception of one member, all of the "Soldiers," or Law's Legionnaires as they were also called, were from brand-new strips that first appeared shortly before the release of the first issue of Leading Comics. The Star Spangled Kid strip began in Star Spangled Comics No. 1 for October, 1941. The first Vigilante strip in Action Comics No. 42, the first Green Arrow tale in More Fun Comics No. 73, and the premiere Shining Knight strip in Adventure Comics were all from November, 1941 issues. The sole exception to this rule was the Crimson Avenger, who had appeared in Detective Comics for several years, but who, however, had just undergone a change from "masked mystery man" to "costumed crimefighter" a few months earlier that year.

The rest of the membership roll was filled from the ranks of the previously mentioned character's side-kicks. Green Arrow's partner, Speedy, and the Star Spangled Kid's adult "aide," Stripsy, were the sixth and seventh Soldiers. The Crimson Avenger's junior partner, Wing, appeared in all 14 issues and was the unofficial eighth member. The Vigilante's original sidekick, Billy Gunn, also appeared in issues number 1 through 4. The Shining Knight had no partner, unless you'd care to count his winged stallion, which was in all 14 stories, as a partner.

The Seven Soldiers were originally united as a fighting team due to the criminal machinations of The Hand, an arch-felon type. The Hand was dying! He had only a short time to live, and he was out to leave behind a reputation as the greatest criminal mind that ever lived. To this purpose he called together five villains, each of whom had previously tangled with one of the members of the not-as-yet formed band of Law's Legionnaires. The Hand's master plan involved having each of the five villains commit a major crime in varied locales throughout the nation. However, each crime also involved a trap for one of the heroes; all part of a plot to eliminate the crime-busters once and for all. The Hand then proceeded to assemble his crimefighting "targets" and informed them of the five villains and their impending misdeeds. The small band of heroes then split up, each to do battle with his old foe. The Shining Knight crossed swords with the Red Dragon; Green Arrow and Speedy tackled Prof. Merlin; The Crimson Avenger and Wing battled Big Caesar; The Star Spangled Kid and Stripsy tangled with The Needle; and Vigilante fought The Dummy. Naturally, the heroes outwitted the villains, and even The Hand finally got his just reward. At the end of the tale, the crimefighters decided to form an informal alliance, and as a team they eventually went on to battle such villains as Black Star, Dr. Doome, The Sense Master, The Skull and Mr. X—The Chameleon of Crime.

There is a natural tendency to compare the Law's Legionnaires with the Justice Society Of America, and although there are a number of surface similarities, a closer study will reveal some basic differences. As in the early JSA stories, the format of the Seven Soldiers Of Victory strip consisted of first and last chapters in which all the heroes appear together, and in between chapters which featured the individual members in related but separate strips of their own. These solo chapters were usually illustrated by the artist who regularly drew the character in his own strip. The only deviations from this pattern were in issue No. 6, in which the members battled each other, and in issue No. 10, in which the regular teams were mixed. One of the basic differences was that, unlike the JSA, the Law's Legionnaires had no regular headquarters. Rather, they merely contacted one another when a case turned up that required their combined talents. However, the greatest difference between the two groups was that, while most of the JSA membership possessed fantastic powers, none of the Seven Soldiers had any super-power. Although they were costumed, and although the Shining Knight rode a winged horse and he and the others often used "super-scientific" gadgets, the fact remains that they were basically nothing more than a group of fancy detectives.

Perhaps the most ironic fact of all is that the runs of the individual strips of three members of the Law's Legionnaires (Green Arrow, Vigilante and Shining Knight) outlasted those of all but one of the regular and two of the honorary members of the Justice Society (Wonder Woman, Superman and Batman).
