GREETINGS FROM WONDER GIRL--

Hola! This is Wonder Woman, coming to you from Paradise Island, secret home of the Amazons!

To Lola Enright, of Pittsburg, Pa., and many others who have written that I did not reply personally to their letters and questions, I must explain that I receive thousands of wonderful letters from all over the world.

I take all these letters to Paradise Island, to read. But if I started to answer every one of them, I would be so busy writing, there wouldn't be a moment left for adventures. And I'm sure you wouldn't like that!

So please go on writing—but understand, that although I read all of your letters, and I try to, I can't possibly answer all of them.

And now let's open some of today's mail!

Dear Wonder Woman: In a recent issue of your magazine, containing the story, "The Revolt of Wonder Woman," there was a little blind girl who was almost struck by a car. She explained that she did not see it. But later on in the story, she heard a frog jump into a pond, she heard a robin flapping its wings, and she heard a leaf fall on the ground. Will you please explain how she could hear all of these things, and recognize them for what they were, although she was blind?

Carole Bordson, Charlotte, N. C.

Dear Carole: First of all, let me compliment you on your careful reading. Not too many readers caught this seeming inconsistency. But it isn't really as inconsistent as you think. You see, whenever a person is deprived of any one of his senses, he almost automatically develops his other senses to a finer edge, to compensate for the loss of one of the senses. It is well known that blind people develop extremely sensitive hearing—the kind of sensitivity that might enable them to hear things the rest of us don't normally listen to. Except—as in the case of this little blind girl—she was daydreaming—and not concentrating!—Wonder Woman.

Dear Wonder Woman: I have a complete collection of your comic books. I think one of the best stories you ever ran was "Capture of the Mirage Giants." Thinking back, there were quite a number of great ones, and I keep reading them all the time. But it is such a long wait between issues. Why don't you come out more often?

Carol Larson, Iron Mountain, Mich.

Dear Carol: Waiting for something you care about very much, can be lots of fun too. I often find myself getting impatient for the time when we can meet again in a new adventure! But, your patience is rewarded, isn't it?—Wonder Woman
* * *

Dear Wonder Woman: I think I won't ever forget the scene in "The Island Eater" where Queen Hippolyta adjusts the time and space projector, and looks at Wonder Girl and says, "She looks so cute—when she's serious." She sounded so much like a real mother that I found myself loving her. Please give Queen Hippolyta my best regards.

Peter Nickels, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Peter: Your letter touched my heart! With all the big, exciting things that were happening in that adventure, you remember most of all Queen Hippolyta's motherly remark.—Wonder Woman.
* * *

Dear Wonder Woman: This is to let you know that Wonder Woman is our favorite comic book. My friend, Linda, and my little sister all feel the same way, although we also buy other DC magazines. We all feel that "The Academy of Arch-Villains" was the best story yet. The only trouble with it was, we were worried that you wouldn't win out in the end.

Judy Benge, Stockton, Calif.

Dear Judy: If you were convinced at the beginning of the story that I was sure to win out, would you like the story as much?—Wonder Woman.

And now, dear friends, my omni-receiver is summoning me to new adventures! Farewell for a while, and don't forget to meet here again at . . .
